General Assembly May Rewrite Budget

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio General Assembly, suddenly faced with a budget carrying a $300 million deficit, reportedly will rewrite Gov. James A. Rhodes' massive $12.2 billion proposal.

The proposal, which Rhodes introduced as a balanced budget sufficient to meet the state's needs, was jolted Thursday when the governor withdrew his support for a bill changing the collection time for the corporate franchise tax.

The change would have netted the state almost $100 million in a one-time cash bonanza. Both Rhodes and state Budget Director Howard Collier said the bill was critical to balancing the governor's budget.

Collier said killing the tax change would have a $300 million impact on the budget due to complicated fiscal requirements and cash flow problems.

Thomas J. Moyer, the governor's chief aide, pointed out that the $300 million is only a paper deficit—the money still will come into state coffers, but not during the time it's needed.

Collier said he wasn't happy with Rhodes' decision to abandon the tax change, a decision Rhodes said was made because of the increased burden it would put on businessmen during a recession.

"It should be made clear that that's the governor's position, not mine," Collier said.

Being Lawyer Bruising

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Attorney Henry A. Masana has discovered that representing two brothers convicted of robbing a store can be a bruising experience.

Two weeks ago one of Masana's clients, William Murphy, 28, slammed the attorney into a wall and used him as a human shield to escape from the Butler County Courthouse after being sentenced to 4-25 years.

Murphy was captured the next day and is now being held on 10 charges, including six counts of kidnapping.

Thursday, Masana, a former police sergeant, was standing next to his other client, Harold Murphy, 32, when a judge sentenced Murphy to 2-15 years.

The client wheeled and struck Masana on the jaw, sending him sprawling to the courtroom floor.

"He didn't say a word to me," said Masana.

Hardin County Without Winners

KENTON, Ohio (AP) — There have been no major lottery winners of $500 or more out of Hardin County.

Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson has suggested that Hardin County residents who purchased lottery tickets in the past double-check their tickets to make sure they haven't overlooked a winner.

Ferguson said nearly $1.5 million in unclaimed prizes has accrued in the state treasury.

Since the lottery began, there have been 2,165 major winners, including 85 who won $30,000 or more, Ferguson said.

Americans today find South Vietnam's politics grimly familiar, but this time the crisis may be the worst since the confusion began less than 12 years ago with the fall of Ngo Dinh Diem.

The politicians now are grappling for only a fraction of what the country was when Diem fell, because the northern Communists are gobbling territory in the most determined offensive since peace was supposed to have broken out two years ago.

President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime is South Vietnam's tenth since the end of 1963 and his eight years is an endurance record. But the regime seems to be staggering now and Thieu's former close ally poses a threat to his rule.

It's always been like that and much of this sounds like where the Americans came in. Again there is a committee for "national salvation," again a cry for democracy and clean government, again talk of a military

President Paving Way For Veto Of Tax Cut Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says his decision on whether to sign or veto the $24.8 billion tax cut bill is "a tough call" because he has found "some good and some very bad things" in it.

Initial reaction at the White House indicated unhappiness with the bill because of the size of the tax cut, the repeal of the oil depletion allowance and what administration officials say is the possibility of a $100-billion budget deficit for fiscal 1976.

If Ford signs the bill, rebate checks on 1974 taxes would be mailed beginning May 15. Lower tax withholding rates would go into effect May 1.

The Treasury Department sent the President an evaluation of the tax bill provisions Thursday, including four pages "of major objections," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen reported.

Ford met with his economic advisers Thursday and asked for their analysis of the bill.

"I want you to look not only at the specifics of this bill, but the failure of Congress to hold down spending,"

Ford told them. The President wanted a tax cut of $16.2 billion, but sent word that he might go as high as $20 billion.

When the final figures came in, he was described as disappointed and "seriously concerned" over provisions of the bill.

James T. Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, told the President at the meeting Thursday that Congress' failure to go along with Ford's requests for spending cuts and for his tax cut would bring the budget deficit for 1976 to about $100 billion.

Nessen emphasized that Ford has not yet made any decision and that it will take at least several days before he makes up his mind.

The President has until midnight Tuesday, April 8, to act on the bill, which Congress passed in a last-minute rush late Wednesday before beginning a 10-day Easter recess. The bill passed the House 287 to 125 and the Senate 45 to 16. Both majorities were well above the two-thirds needed to override a veto.

Ford had planned an Easter trip to Palm Springs, Calif., which was to start Saturday, but Nessen said Thursday that plans for the trip were "completely up in the air" as Ford pondered the possibility of a veto.

The tax-cut measure calls for: —A 10 per cent rebate on 1974 taxes, up to a maximum of $200.

—A special $50 payment to all recipients of Social Security, railroad retirement and certain other welfare programs for the aged, blind and disabled.

—Repeal of the 22 per cent oil depletion allowance for large oil and gas producers.

—Increases in the maximum standard deduction, which is used by taxpayers who do not itemize their deductions.

Ford is known to oppose the repeal of the oil depletion allowance and the over-all size of the tax cut. He had asked for reductions of $16.2 billion. During the congressional debate on the depletion allowance, supporters of the allowance said its repeal might add 10 cents to the retail price of gasoline. Supporters of repeal said the cost would be less than two cents a gallon.

Tax Plan Has Hidden Loophole

WASHINGTON (AP) — The broadest help in the new tax bill goes to lower-income persons, but the biggest individual dollar winners would be a few upper-middle class taxpayers who qualify for two narrowly drawn benefits.

The profile of the tax-cut sweepstakes champion looks like this, assuming President Ford signs the tax cut bill approved by Congress:

Family income between $27,600 and $35,000. Both parents work, necessitating $4,800 in child care expenses. Purchasers of a new $40,000 home during the rest of this year.

If you fit this profile, the tax savings could total nearly $4,000 compared with 1974.

The purchaser of a new home will receive a tax credit of 5 per cent of the purchase price up to a credit ceiling of $2,000. That ceiling is reached when the purchase price hits $40,000. A tax credit is subtracted directly from the tax bill.

Liberalization of the child care deduction extends this benefit well up the income ladder. Currently, $4,800 in such expenses can be deducted if family income is $18,000 or less, and a decreasing portion of such expense can be deducted as income increases to $27,600.

Under the tax cut bill, the full $4,800 could be deducted until income reached $35,000. A decreasing portion could be deducted until income hit $44,600.

Thus, for a family earning between $27,600 and $35,000, a $4,800 deduction from gross income that couldn't be taken at all in the past is now fully available. The tax saving could reach $1,600 depending on other facets of the tax return.

Like every other taxpayer, these winning families will get a new tax credit of $30 for every dependent. That's worth $120 for a family of four regardless of income.

The rebate of 1974 taxes tails off for these upper middle class families, but is still worth at least $100 and perhaps a few dollars more.

The rebate plan gives every taxpayer at least $100 back if he or she paid $100 in taxes.

The maximum rebate is $200 for those whose 1974 tax bill was at least $2,000 and whose family income did not exceed $20,000.

Lower income persons whose tax bill was less than $100 will get all they paid back.

Lower income families with children will get a tax credit of 10 per cent of their total income if their earnings did not exceed $4,000. Those in the $4,000 to $8,000 bracket will get a progressively smaller credit.

Changes in the minimum and maximum standard deductions will help low income families, and many middle income families who don't itemize tax deductions.

Single persons will be able to earn $300 more than previously and couples $600 more than before without having to pay any taxes at all.

"I don't think the budget can be cut by $300 million," Collier said. "I'm not totally comfortable today. But that is not unusual for the state budget director. We'll solve the problem."

Moyer said there's been no decision on what might be cut from the governor's budget or what other sources of income might be found.

"There's nothing specific that has been worked out," he said. "We're just reviewing it, looking at the whole thing now."

But the General Assembly indicated it plans to go ahead on its own.

Rep. George D. Tablack, D-52 Campbell, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said the legislature's Joint Finance Committee will work on writing its own budget bill, drawing from the Rhodes' budget and from the budget left by former Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Economic Decline Said Moderating, But Not Too Much

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest indicator from the government shows that if the economy isn't due to turn up within six months or so, it's at least deteriorating more slowly.

The indicator is a composite of a dozen economic factors combined into one index designed to anticipate the future. The Commerce Department said Thursday it climbed 1 per cent in February after diving 12.8 per cent over the last six months.

James L. Pate, top economist at the Commerce Department, cautioned it would be premature to conclude that the February advance necessarily means the economy has touched bottom or will do so soon.

For one thing, some data unavailable in the initial report will have to be added sometime this month, raising the possibility the revised figure may show a decline.

Pate, however, said the upturn "is consistent with other evidence that the economic decline is moderating."

The advance in the index of leading economic indicators coincides with the announcement that the nation's trade balance improved and weekly retail sales spurred upward.

The trade figures showed that U.S. oil imports dropped sharply in February, leaving a trade surplus of $917 million. In contrast, there was a $210.5 million deficit in January when oil importers apparently rushed to beat a tariff imposed Feb. 1.

But again Commerce Department officials were cautious.

"Oil imports in future months will probably be above the February figure," said Acting Secretary John K.

Tabor. He said total U.S. exports far above current volume will be needed to hold the expected deficit for the full year to modest proportions.

At the same time, the increase in weekly retail sales to 7 per cent over a year ago reversed the previous week's decline.

The index of leading economic indicators, although designed to measure economic trends in advance, is distorted by an inflationary climate. For example, it kept going up even as the nation was entering the current recession.

But figures maintained independently by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston indicated that even adjusting for the February advance for inflation, there was still a six-tenths of 1 per cent rise in the index.

The deflated Boston Fed index has been moving downward steadily since March 1973, over a year before the Commerce Department index started its sustained drop.

In past recessions the index has anticipated recoveries by as long as six months. But in the latest recession of 1970 the index didn't touch bottom until the economy did.

Meanwhile, the stock market closed moderately higher Thursday. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 4.07 points to 770.26 after rising 18 points Wednesday. Analysts said the market would have responded more enthusiastically to the report on the leading economic indicators but that concern that President Ford might veto the tax cut bill dampened investor enthusiasm.

New Left Radicals Being Gathered In

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

For five years, they seemed almost immune from capture, those 1960s New Left radicals who often seemed so proud of making their way onto the FBI's 10 Most Wanted list. But part of the facade is cracking.

In the latest in a series of such arrests, FBI agents Thursday night picked up Susan Edith Saxe, wanted since 1970 on charges of interstate flight to avoid prosecution for the murder of a Boston police officer shot following a bank robbery.

She was the fourth political radical taken into custody since last Nov. 14 after five years in which only one major radical fugitive had been arrested.

Miss Saxe, 26, of Albany, N.Y., was captured on a downtown Philadelphia street after a policeman recognized her from photographs and a description that had been reissued Thursday by the FBI. Authorities said Miss Saxe was believed to be in the area and that is why the new photos had been released.

Police said she was unarmed and did not resist arrest, although she "was quivering, she was nervous as hell."

Law enforcement authorities and underground reports indicate that in five years, there has been considerable change in a number of the fugitives, most of whom were middle class whites radicalized by the war in Vietnam. Some have given up radical activities altogether and some of the women have turned to feminism.

The nucleus of the fugitive left — the Weather Underground — remains at large, and has, in fact, become more vocal. From all accounts, it is a highly disciplined, highly organized underground group that has been impossible for authorities to infiltrate.

In recent months, it has claimed responsibility for a number of bombings; it has been reported helping other political fugitives; it has released the first issue of what it says will become a quarterly magazine.

For a long time, the only major radical arrested had been Karleton L. Armstrong, one of four men sought in a fatal bombing at the University of Wisconsin. He was convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to 23 years in prison.

But lately, there have been these developments:

—Jane Alpert, 27, who jumped bail after being charged in a series of bombings in New York City in 1969 and 1970, turned herself in on Nov. 14. She pleaded guilty to conspiracy and bail jumping and was sentenced to 27 months in prison.

—Patricia Swinton, 33, alleged to be a member of the same bomb ring, was arrested March 12 in the Brattleboro, Vt., health food store where she worked as a clerk. She was released in $200,000 bail and has returned to Vermont.

—Cameron D. Bishop, the first identifiable radical to be placed on the 10 Most Wanted List, was arrested March 12 in East Greenwich, R.I., in a car which police said contained a small arsenal of weapons. He had been sought since April, 1969 on charges of dynamiting four transmission towers in Colorado that supplied power to defense plants.

Three Injured In Accidents

Ethel S. Picklesimer, 23, 159 Villa Dr., was treated and released at Berger Hospital for a bump on the forehead and bruised legs, sustained in a single-car accident, 1:35 p.m. Thursday.

According to the report taken by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy James Dixon, Miss Picklesimer was traveling east on the Circleville-Tarleton-Northern Road attempting to make a left turn onto Bolender-Pontious Road.

The vehicle slid in loose gravel causing it to go off the road over an embankment and strike two small trees.

The driver was trapped in the auto for 15 minutes.

Deputy John Bost cited 19-year-old Carl E. Clifton, Route 2, Plumwood, for driving while intoxicated, when he was involved in an accident just 20 minutes after a similar accident.

Traveling west on the Harrisburg-Fairfield Road, Clifton failed to yield to a stop sign, traveled through the County Road intersection and came to rest in a field.

A passenger, Brett E. Turvey, 15, Route 2, London, was referred to a doctor for contusions to the legs.

Tires Slashed
Thieves hit the Harden Chevrolet new car sales lot for the second time in a month.

Al Martin, new car manager, told Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy James Dixon, that the thieves took three new radial tires and two wheels from a new car parked in the car lot at the north end of the building, sometime between March 20 and March 27.

The items were valued at $334.50.

New Law Enforcement Data System Undergoes Testing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's new Law Enforcement Automated Data System (LEADS) was tested this week.

The statewide telecommunications network, used for storage and retrieval of law enforcement information, has "been in the mill for two years," said Maj. Chester Hayth, of the Ohio State Highway Patrol.

Hayth said the patrol, the coordinating agency for the network, would be testing the new system again Saturday.

Working the "bugs" out of the new system will take some time, he said. No date has been set yet for the final transferral from the old, slower communications system to the new one.

The new system, with a pair of rented Univac computers in Columbus, two switches in Cleveland and Cincinnati, 60 lines and 337 terminals scattered throughout the state, will give better and faster service, Hayth said.

"The problem with the old system was that our equipment was not fast enough to carry the volume we're presently experiencing," he said.

"Now we'll have faster access to files on people."

Stored in the computer is information on vehicle operators' licenses, car registrations, lists of stolen cars, and criminal information, such as warrants on file and records of wanted persons, Hayth said.

Ohio also has a direct hookup with the National Crime Information Center (NCIC) in Washington, D.C.

Approximately 83 per cent of the state's law enforcement agencies — highway patrol, counties' sheriffs' departments and local police — have direct access to information terminals, Hayth said. The rest get information through a phone call.

Fire Causes $7000 Damage

Fire caused $4000 damage to a home owned by Mrs. Louise Ehman, Route 2, Orient, 7:10 p.m. Thursday and $3000 to the contents owned by Richard and Joyce Cordell, Route 2, Orient.

According to the report taken by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy John Bost, the Scioto Township Fire Department was extinguishing the fire contained in the kitchen area of the house located on Welch Road.

The fire apparently was caused by an electrical short in the dryer and cooking stove.

The home was occupied by the Cordell's at the time.

Damage to the house was extensive in the kitchen area.

Tires, Wheels Taken From Car

Circleville Police are investigating two reports of slashed tires Wednesday night.

Carolyn Cassidy, Logan Elm Village, told officers that the right front tire of her vehicle was slashed by vandals while she was visiting friends in Garden City.

Vandals slashed a tire on the car of Calvin Weaver, 381 Cedar Heights Rd. The car was parked in front of his house.

Economic Decline Said Moderating, But Not Too Much

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest indicator from the government shows that if the economy isn't due to turn up within six months or so, it's at least deteriorating more slowly.

The indicator is a composite of a dozen economic factors combined into one index designed to anticipate the future. The Commerce Department said Thursday it climbed 1 per cent in February after diving 12.8 per cent over the last six months.

James L. Pate, top economist at the Commerce Department, cautioned it would be premature to conclude that the February advance necessarily means the economy has touched bottom or will do so soon.

For one thing, some data unavailable in the initial report will have to be added sometime this month, raising the possibility the revised figure may show a decline.

Pate, however, said the upturn "is consistent with other evidence that the economic decline is moderating."

The advance in the index of leading economic indicators coincides with the announcement that the nation's trade balance improved and weekly retail sales spurred upward.

The trade figures showed that U.S. oil imports dropped sharply in February, leaving a trade surplus of $917 million. In contrast, there was a $210.5 million deficit in January when oil importers apparently rushed to beat a tariff imposed Feb. 1.

But again Commerce Department officials were cautious.

"Oil imports in future months will probably be above the February figure," said Acting Secretary John K.

Tabor. He said total U.S. exports far above current volume will be needed to hold the expected deficit for the full year to modest proportions.

At the same time, the increase in weekly retail sales to 7 per cent over a year ago reversed the previous week's decline.

The index of leading economic indicators, although designed to measure economic trends in advance, is distorted by an inflationary climate. For example, it kept going up even as the nation was entering the current recession.

But figures maintained independently by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston indicated that even adjusting for the February advance for inflation, there was still a six-tenths of 1 per cent rise in the index.

The deflated Boston Fed index has been moving downward steadily since March 1973, over a year before the Commerce Department index started its sustained drop.

In past recessions the index has anticipated recoveries by as long as six months. But in the latest recession of 1970 the index didn't touch bottom until the economy did.

Meanwhile, the stock market closed moderately higher Thursday. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 4.07 points to 770.26 after rising 18 points Wednesday. Analysts said the market would have responded more enthusiastically to the report on the leading economic indicators but that concern that President Ford might veto the tax cut bill dampened investor enthusiasm.

Farmers Union Advocates Reduced Production In 1975

Delegates to the 73rd national convention of the Farmers Union held in Portland, Oregon, adopted a resolution to reduce their cost risk by reducing production according to Willard England, Route 1, Pickaway County farmers union official.

The resolution stated farmers' support of full production of food for consumers and for export but added, in part:

"In the face of rapidly escalating production costs and the resulting threat to the entire farming operation, unless Congress and the Administration will assure farmers a realistic return on their production, we recommend farmers reduce their risk and reduce production in an amount necessary to protect their operation."

No specific percentage cutback was recommended.

Attending the organization's convention from Ohio were: Jack Rose, president; Charles Nash, executive secretary and director and eight state delegates.

In his annual report, National President Tony Dechant called on America to "put its faith into ploughshares and not swords." He called the continuing arms race "the end product of a doctrine of fear."

Dechant urged that money now spent on armaments be diverted into the building of peace, including expenditures for agriculture, education and the promotion of the arts.

Banquet speaker Rev. John McRaith of the National Catholic Rural Life conference declared "The world needs a just system of production and distribution of food. Justice for the farmer goes hand in hand with justice for the consumer and for the starving people of the world."

In a joint news conference Dechant and Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers Union announced the formation of the Alliance for Food, Employment and Resource Policy. They are the co-chairmen. It will develop policy and plans for food, employment and utilization of scarce resources.

Woodcock told the convention American labor will support a program of farm prices at adequate parity levels because it is essential to the health of the nation.

Dr. John Stoessinger, experienced in United Nations work, told the more than 1,300 delegates and members the long-range solution to world hunger is to increase the purchasing power of developing nations.

Several guests and many delegates to the convention warned that agriculture is either in a depression or headed for one. Congressman Bob Bergland of Minnesota said any further decline in farm prices could trigger a "major depression."

USDA Issues Report On Parity

WASHINGTON (AP) — As if prompted by recent farm bill debate in Congress, the Agriculture Department has come up with a new report about parity and how it is used by statisticians who work with commodity prices.

The term "parity" as it relates to the farm sector often seems as mysterious and incomprehensible to laymen as the word "par" is to non-golfers. Both have to do with what is considered a fair score on any given course or farm commodity.

A report called the "Agricultural Situation" issued Wednesday by the department's Statistical Reporting Service describes parity as "a yardstick for measuring how close prices received by farmers are to the price Congress defined as a fair goal."

Congress in 1938 ordered USDA to keep track of prices farmers get for a wide range of commodities and to publish each month figures showing how they stack up against the parity standard.

The methods used to arrive at parity prices are complex. But, basically, if farmers got the parity price (meaning the full measure or 100 per cent) it theoretically would give them the same purchasing power as they had in 1910-14, a base period in which prices farmers paid as expenses were in balance with those they received for their products.

Thus, the parity price floats from month to month. Costs of production, inflation and many other factors are involved. But the monthly full parity price of a specific commodity theoretically would give a producer the same buying power their forerunners had back in 1910-14.

The prices compiled by USDA are further translated into a "parity ratio" which is a blend figure of all commodity prices. On Feb. 15, for example, the parity ratio was 69 per cent. That means, using the formula, farmers generally received prices which gave them only 69 per cent of the goal set forth in the 1910-14 standard.

For all of 1974, the parity ratio averaged 80 per cent, compared with 88 per cent in 1973 and 74 per cent in 1972. It has not averaged 100 per cent or more for an entire year since 1952.

But the parity prices for individual commodities in any given month can range widely. On Feb. 15, the most recent month calculated, the parity price of manufacturing-grade milk, for example, was $9.92 per 100 pounds.

Farmers actually received, on the average, $6.98 per 100 pounds for manufacturing grade milk last month. That translated into 75.7 per cent of parity.

Last Jan. 4 the government's milk price support — based on manufacturing-grade milk used to make butter, cheese and other products — was raised to 80 per cent of parity at that time. That translated into $7.24 per 100 pounds, a rate which USDA said would remain into effect until April 1, 1976.

Court Rules On Voice Recording

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — An appeals court ruled Thursday that a defendant's constitutional privilege against self-incrimination is not violated if a court orders him to submit to a recording of his voice before trial.

The 5th Ohio District Court of Appeals handed down the ruling in a Mansfield Municipal Court case involving Billy Ray Alfrey of Mansfield, who was charged with harrasment by telephone and aggravated menacing.

Alfrey was arrested last May and ordered by Municipal Court Judge Harold Lutz to appear at the Richland County sheriff's department before his trial so that his voice could be recorded.

He was directed to speak certain words, phrases or sentences law enforcement officers would supply.

Alfrey failed to appear and Lutz found him in contempt of court.

The appellate court decision said, "The giving of a voice sample has been held to not be in violation of the constitutional privilege against self-incrimination because the accused is not being required to utter statements of a testimonial nature, but he is simply being ordered to use his voice as a source of physical evidence."

Colorful Eggs

Fluffy bunnies and gay-colored chicks — how did they become connected with the religious holiday, Easter? And why do colored eggs make their gay debut at Easter when at other times they are dull and drab?

Historians know more about the origin of the festive colored Easter eggs than they do about the bunnies and chicks. The origin of the Easter egg goes back to ancient religious devotees, who believed that eggs laid on Good Friday could be kept all year, because the day exercised a charm on the products of the farmyard.

All ancient peoples regarded the egg as a work of the Supreme Divinity. Coloring and ornamentation of Easter eggs seem to have been a part of the original custom, which was taken over by the church. On Easter eve and Easter day heads of families sent hardboiled eggs to the church to have them blessed and sprinkled with holy water.

After the eggs were blessed, everyone took home his portion and painted the shells with several colors and gilt. Those who came to visit during Easter week were invited to eat an Easter egg.

Whatever the custom's origin, gay Easter eggs will be as plentiful as ever this year. The young ones in particular will enjoy all the activities centering around the egg, including dyeing, eating and searching for those the Easter bunny so mysteriously hides away.

The Russian Sub Story

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — Science-fiction writer friend of mine, Joe, couldn't sleep the other night after he had a sauerkraut and cream puff dinner. But in the course of tossing and turning in bed, he came up with a crazy plot for a book. Goes something like this:

The XYZ, that supersecret U.S. intelligence agency, learns from Serge-X, the spy it has planted in the Red Navy, that a Soviet missile-carrying submarine mysteriously exploded some years ago and sank in three miles of water between Hawaii and Midway. No survivors.

Naturally, as Joe explained his proposed thriller, XYZ wants to get its mitts on the sub and cop its code books and missiles. If we can get the codes, then we can understand all that gobbledygook of theirs that we monitor day and night. If we can get the missiles we can tell whether they improve on them after stealing them from us.

However, XYZ can't practice dirty pool in public.

"So that ends the book, right?" I said to Joe.

"No, stupid. My plot is just beginning to unwind," he belched. "XYZ's deputy director, made up to look like Bella Abzug's husband, contacts Jane Russell, Bob Maheu and Johnny Meyer and finally gets through to Howie Huggs, the reclusive billionaire. Huggs is instantly fascinated because it sounds like his kind of intrigue.

"Good-o!" Huggs shouts. "Why don't I build you folks a $350,000,000 salvage ship about 600 feet long with a tonnage around 30,000 and derricks and claws strong enough to lift that threat to our national security from its resting place in Davy Jones's locker? I'll name her Glomar Explorer, after an old aunt of mine in Houston."

"We'll check her out to see if she's any kin to a certain Glomar Explorer who contributed a double sawbuck to Russian Relief during the Siege of Leningrad, back there a ways," the deputy director snaps. "Now get to work and build that ship."

"You'll need something else," Huggs said, lowering the blinds of his underground penthouse in the Bahamas. "You'll want a great big barge into which you can hide the missiles and code books once we get them to the surface. I think I have just the barge you'll need; one that can be submerged just below the surface, once its precious cargo is aboard, and then towed to Pearl Harbor. This puzzles the deputy director — I saw Don Rickles in that part, for the movie. So Huggs explains that if you don't hide the barge while it's being towed all those days and nights it might be detected by Russian satellites from 500 miles up. 'I know,' Huggs says with a fiendish cackle. 'My own satellites do the same thing to them, 'round the clock.'"

They'll Do It Every Time

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While millions of unemployed workers seek jobs futilely, there is one worker who can usually find another job — the corporation president who was fired.

The probability is 6 in 10 that the fired president of one of the 500 largest corporations will become president of another company within one year, says Prof. Eugene E. Jennings.

In two years the likelihood rises to 80 per cent and within three years 90 per cent, Jennings found after analyzing the phenomenon as part of a continuing study of executive mobility that began in 1948.

"In America we believe everyone deserves a second chance," he observes, "but a fired president can almost always get three or four chances." He believes that some of the best presidents have been "fired."

The situation is far different from that which existed in the 1950s, when the expansionary dreams and rising profits of American enterprise permitted companies to boot executives into jobs with big titles and minor duties. Running a tight operation today forbids that practice. Instead, the executive is fired.

Moreover, Jennings believes, "We have too few people who visibly qualify for presidencies, and that is why the fired boss succeeds." This might not be so if industry had a bullpen of talent. But it hasn't, he states.

Studies by Jennings, who is a management professor at Michigan State University, personal consultant to many corporation chiefs, and a prolific author, shows that a fired president is much preferred for a top job over a talented vice president.

it was a heartbreaker: the sub is halfway to the surface when a chain pops and it breaks in two. The bigger part of the sub slides back to the bottom. The part that comes to the surface contains dead men, not codes and missiles. The dead are decently buried at sea, but their next of kin are not told. Gotta remember the detente, see?

Joe shed a tear at this point. I tried to console him. "That's a sad ending," I said. "But think of the money you'll make."

"That's just it," Joe said. "I told it to my publisher when I woke up this morning and he couldn't stop laughing. He said, 'Joe, you've pulled some awful hoaxes on the reading public, but you can't get away with a cock and bull story as nutty as this one. Get lost.'"

A vice president with one of the top 500 corporations has only one chance in 10 of becoming president of a company, his own or another, Jennings found.

The reasons? For one thing, the fired president benefits from a greater presence and prestige, simply because he has already been "the boss" and because of media attention given to the top man. "The VP is obscured by the status of a president," Jennings says. But there are other reasons too.

"The vast number of corporations are very conservative in the sense they would rather hire a fired president than an untested vice president. They think they're minimizing the risk," says Jennings, adding:

"The fired president learns a lot and doesn't make mistakes the untested vice president has yet to learn."

Moreover, corporations have cycles. Sometimes a president is fired merely because his talents are a mismatch for corporate needs. But this doesn't mean he won't be a good match with another company.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My sister and I are good friends. She is 32 years old, married, and scared to death of her existence. She travels from doctor to doctor, trying to find the answers to illnesses that she doesn't have.

I go with her and I'm always sympathetic, but she's getting no place. Where do we go from here?

Ms. G.L., Penn.

Dear Ms. L.:

You have given me a fairly good picture of a hypochondriac.

Your sympathetic attitude is admirable, yet I believe that you have fallen into a trap that is not very helpful to your sister.

Hypochondriacs have an intense fear of disease. Phantasy and reality are closely interwoven, and they cannot separate one from the other.

Obviously, your sister suffers intensely. She needs more active psychological support than you are able to give her to relieve her anxiety.

If you both continue on the trail of running from doctor to doctor there will be financial exhaustion, but certainly it will not contribute to your sister's security.

If you cease going to doctors with her she may assume that her case is hopeless and chronic invalidism will be her fate. You must take very positive steps in getting her to see her family physician for the sole purpose of recommending a psychiatrist or a psychologist. Only then, with her full cooperation, can he track down the origin of her fears. Then, with the new psychotropic drugs that are now available, and with psychological guidance, your sister will find peace of mind and happiness.

Are there any drugs that are safe to use for morning sickness in early pregnancy?

Mrs. R.M., Ind.

Dear Mrs. M.:
Absolutely none. I can't emphasize that enough.

Unless your doctor or obstetrician specifically suggests a drug, none should be bought over the counter or handed down to you from solicitous friends.

The accepted attitude of doctors today is that the fewer the drugs taken during pregnancy, the greater the advantage to the mother and the child for a safe pregnancy.

By eating small quantities of food, avoiding tobacco and alcohol your morning sickness may ease. It certainly is worth a try.

The Beginning

By JIM BISHOP

The Florida sun was high and hot at 3 p.m. and peeked rudely over the edge of a gray cloud like a Moslem veil. Father Frederick Brice, tall and nervous, stood before the altar in the small chapel and advised Karen Bishop and Paul Sayrs to kneel.

The church — St. Maurice in Fort Lauderdale — was once a stable. The ceiling beams gleamed with varnish. The little altar boy was silently sullen and unsure whether he should pour the wine first or the water.

The Sayrs and Bishop families knelt, and I noticed that the translucent brim of Karen's big hat and her tiny bouquet were shivering. Kathi, the bridesmaid, looked older, taller than she is. Her floor-length pink gown fell in natural folds like a desert dune.

The mass was quiet and holy, and the organist played so softly that I held my breath to make sure I was hearing music. In what seemed a moment, it was over. I had taken her hand and placed it in his — forever.

Father Brice read a cable from Rome bestowing the blessing of Paul VI on the union of a bride, 21, and a bridegroom, 28. This was not something earned or deserved; it was sought by my friend Archbishop Martin O'Connor, the affluent American in the Vatican who longs to return to his hometown, Scranton, Pennsylvania.

The bride had chosen to have her reception at home. So be it. Behind the Chinese house there is a 40 by 60 swimming pool area with oriental gardens. Kelly, and her friend Marilyn Kofod, had given carte blanche to the fabulous Marcella of Miami to arrange the wedding reception. I had a silent suspicion that everything would go wrong.

Nothing went wrong. On the patio were round tables evenly spaced, topped by embroidered cloths. Across the middle of the swimming pool was a bridge with white railings — a dance floor. At the far end Marcella had built a lacy-looking gazebo for the bridal couple and their attendants, including the best man, Brian Sayrs, the kid with the beard.

As a father of four daughters, this was my third wedding — not counting the numerous society weddings which city editors assigned to me as punishment for forgotten crimes. A lady drummer crossed the bridge to the bandstand and said, "Look. Two swimming pools."

That set the mood. The day before, a Chinese piano tuner called to adjust the white and blacks to proper pitch.

His opening statement was, "Chinese house. You know the brass letters outside?" I nodded. "One," he said with contempt, "is upside down."

It became a laughing, dancing wedding. The musicians were on the far side of the pool. They were supposed to play rock music because this noise is what the newlyweds desired. They never got closer than "Tea for Two."

Marcella, a buxom Roman, is a radiant armwaver. "I am flabbergasted," she said. "Such pretty daughters." I was flabbergasted myself, and so was my wife. Never have I tasted hors d'oeuvres such as these and Ann Maffi, a moody smiler, made. Miniature cantaloupe balls, bread bowl with pepper, fried zucchini strings, prosciutto.

My wife and I had an unusual sensation of enjoying the ride to instant bankruptcy. A handsome, graying man handled the booze and he fixed the mixings as though no order was impossible to fulfill.

At Irish weddings and funerals, it is important that some get drunk. No one did. I had five champagnes with a dinner which consisted of so many complex servings, except the roast beef, that I was eating unidentified hot cheeses, tomato and chicken.

With a little coaxing, the young people danced on the bridge over the River Kwai. These university kids are rare birds. The orchestra swung into a Jewish hora and, in a trice, they formed a big circle, arms around shoulders, and the Baptists and Methodists and Lutherans executed the dance, laughing and shouting the cadence.

When the band took a break, my old friend Max Lewis set a glass of Canadian Club on the piano and ripped off request numbers. It was too good; too much. I worried about the neighbors and the noise.

At 9:05 p.m., the guests said their thank yous and began to leave. Through the overhead screen, I could see a thin peel of moon and a bright evening star.

I made a wish. I could do no better than to hope that Paul and Karen will know the sweet scent of contentment which Kelly and I have had all these years...

Church After Jesus Loses Jewish Context

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth and final article of an Easter series about the Jewishness of Jesus, this section dealing with the Jewish-Gentile development of Christianity, the engrafted church.

By GOERGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The mother church in Jerusalem clung closely to Judaism, but it and its guiding influence were wiped out in the furious Roman destruction of Israel in 70 A.D. Predominance gradually shifted to others elsewhere, increasingly Gentiles. In time, they took over. But the brilliant, impassioned Jewish scholar, Paul, who championed and achieved that transposition into the wider world, sometimes in heated argument with Jesus' chief apostle, Peter, never forsook the cradling faith, and maintained the church should not do so, either.

"Remember it is not you that support the root, but the root that supports you," he writes in Romans 11, likening Christianity to a branch grafted into a nurturing and holy tree.

He proclaims himself a "Hebrew born of the Hebrews" in Philippians 3:5, or as he puts it in Acts 23:6 "Brethren, I am a Pharisee, a son of Pharisees." Yet he also pressed steadily in opening the broadened dimensions of the new faith.

"There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male nor female; for you are all one in Christ Jesus," Paul wrote in his letter to the Galatians. "And if you are Christ's, then you are Abraham's offspring, heirs according to the promise."

It was an expanded scope, an inclusive vision, initially unforeseen by the apostles who worked directly with Jesus and who even after his resurrection from death, still centered their hopes in Israel.

"Lord, will you at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?" they asked in Acts 1:6. Jesus, before parting from their sight, left them with an enlarged horizon, but without rejecting the original:

"It is not for you to know the times or the seasons which the Father has fixed by his own authority. But you shall receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you; and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria and to the end of the earth."

The resurrection appearances, at least 11 of them in various settings, lasted over a period of 40 days. Then that spiritual infusion came about 10 days later, like a rush of wind, like ribbons of flame, as described in Acts 2.

Fuel Clause Costs Ohioans $524 Million

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio gas and electric companies added to monthly bills of their customers $524.3 million in fuel adjustment costs last year, the Public Utilities Commission reported.

The clause allows the utilities to pass along to their customers the charges reflecting higher fuel costs for the previous month, over and above the base rate established by the PUCO.

Without adjusting the monthly rate to reflect the higher fuel cost, utilities claim they would be forced to absorb the fuel costs for months or years until PUCO granted an increase in the base rate.

Fuel adjustment charges by utilities to electrical customers last year were: Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co., $21.2 million, up 54 per cent from the previous year; Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., $83.7 million, up 117 per cent; Ohio Power Co., $71.3 million, up 59 per cent; Ohio Edison Co., $101.7 million, up 259 per cent; Cincinnati Gas & Electric, $46.6 million, up 89 per cent; Dayton Power & Light, $32.5 million, up 77 per cent and Toledo Edison, $29.9 million, up 128 per cent.

Gas purchase clause adjustments for 1974 totaled $22.1 million for CG&E, an increase of 119 per cent over 1973 adjustments; $64.4 million for Columbia Gas of Ohio, a 581 per cent increase; $32.3 million for East Ohio Gas Co., a 1 per cent increase; DP&L $18.6 million, for a 127 per cent increase and $166,000 for Toledo Edison.

It was the day of Pentecost, commemorating God's revelation of the law to Moses, and the hesitant, uncertain apostles suddenly became fervent, forthright preachers.

Three thousand joined the cause that day, soon becoming 5,000, and the church commenced. It was a pervasively Jewish church, one of various groups within Judaism, just as Jesus himself had focused his work within that heritage. As Acts 2:46 notes, believers attended Temple services daily, and they taught in the synagogues, as Paul did later, both in Jerusalem and elsewhere.

"They were all together, part of the same Jewish community, which included all sorts of movements," says Presbyterian scholar Harry E. Gaylord, editor of a current 10-volume publishing project sponsored by the Vatican's Secretariat for Christian Unity, the World Council of Churches and the American Jewish Committee, concerning the first two centuries of Christianity.

"The Christians, as they eventually were called, didn't have a uniform approach to Jewish law, but they were not trying to break away from Judaism," he adds. "They were a group within it trying to make their views normative. First-generation Christianity was a part of Judaism, but the next generation read us out of it."

The faith, in those years, was called "the Way," Acts 9:2 notes, one of several "ways" or "minim" in Judaism.

The Rome-aligned Sadducean hierarchy led by Caiaphas sought to suppress it, using as an enforcement agent the zealously devout, intellectual Saul of Tarsus. He raided, imprisoned and aided stoning mobs.

Then two strange things happened. One was Saul's lightning conversion on the road to Damascus to belief in Jesus, as overwhelming as had been his previous opposition. He afterward was called Paul. Meanwhile, a brother of Jesus, James the Just, highly esteemed by Jerusalem's people and of deeply orthodox practice, emerges as presiding officer of Jerusalem's church.

Rivalry soon showed between the mother church and Paul, who favored admitting Gentiles without their first being circumcized into Judaism and without adherence to other Scriptural disciplines.

He charged in his letter to the Galatians that the Jerusalem church sent investigators to "spy out our freedom," and that agents of James came to Antioch and got the apostle Peter to stop eating non-kosher meals with Gentiles. "I opposed him to his face, because he stood condemned," Paul writes.

He was summoned before the Jerusalem church council in 49 A.D., 20 years after the death and resurrection of Jesus. Peter defended Paul's lenient approach while others opposed it as compromising the high standards of God's revealed laws in a pagan world.

James, pronouncing the council's judgment, took a middle course, excusing Gentile believers from detailed requirements, but insisting they must uphold basic moral standards and discretions in keeping with Judaism.

Paul, previously suspect, was given "the right hand of fellowship," he says in Galatians 2:9.

But the differences persisted. Paul says he had been "entrusted with a gospel to the uncircumcized" while Peter carried the "gospel to the circumcized." Paul castigates those holding "a different gospel" from his, and in 2nd Corinthians 11, belabors those "false apostles" preaching "another Jesus than the one we preached."

"I think I am not in the least inferior to those superlative apostles," he says. Encountering James later in Jerusalem, and reminded in Acts 21:20 of the thousands of Jewish believers who are "all zealous for the law," Paul underwent a special Temple purification discipline of seven days to establish his Jewish credentials.

But he stuck to his own interpretation. "We hold that a man is justified by faith apart from works in the law," he writes in Romans 3:28, adding that the law nevertheless must be upheld, even though all fall short of it.

To James, religion was empty without definite deeds attesting to it. "Faith without works is dead," he writes in his epistle, James 2:26.

It was a subtle, complex issue, and as the centuries passed, Paul's view gained overwhelming ascendancy, his writings and though filling 13 books of the New Testament, a far greater portion than that of any other author.

In contrast, the Jerusalem church and its records were destroyed 40 years after Jesus' time, except for a few escapees to Pella in the Transjordan. That was the "last blow which separated mother from child," says Bible scholar Morton Scott Enslin.

Subsequent periods of anti-Jewish theorizing pictured Judaism as a religion only of legalism, fear and exacting Scriptures and the prophets throb with the outpouring of God's constant mercy and forgiveness.

Paul himself, while insisting on freedom from Jewish observances and sharply reproaching those not accepting Jesus, stresses the ethical ideals of Judaism and repeatedly emphasizes, as in Romans 11, that "God has not rejected his people whom he foreknew."

He even cites Moses and the Jewish prophets as his authority in contending in Romans 9 that both Jews and Gentiles are saved by "God's mercy." "All Israel will be saved," he says in Romans 11. "For the gifts and call of God are irrevocable."

Out of that drumbeat theme that God's salvation comes through Israel, the church in afteryears took on the claim of being the "new Israel," superseding the old and acquiring its promises.

"But there's not a text in the New Testament which justifies this superseding myth," says Methodist theologian Franklin Littell. "It's a Gentile invention of the later church fathers. Paul, in his most agonized moments, emphasizes that salvation of Gentiles becomes a graft on the salvation provided by the Jews."

Several noted church scholars, beginning in the 1950s with the late Reinhold Niebuhr, have opposed Christian proselytizing of Jews, concluding that Judaism, although not recognizing Jesus as a Messiah, remains a permanently valid and divinely sanctioned instrument of salvation of God's chosen people, while Jesus extends it to others.

"If the Jewish people are not already members of God's family, we who are Gentiles remain lost, for the Jewish covenant into which Jesus leads us would be revealed as a delusion," says theologian A. Roy Eckardt. "Only a Jew, Jesus, could accomplish the miracle of opening the covenant to the pagan world."

Paul speaks similarly in Galatians 4:5, saying Jesus necessarily came under Judaism's law so Gentiles "might receive adoption as sons."

The modern scholars, including individual Catholics and Protestants, point out the Bible's emphasis on the "ever-lasting" nature of God's covenant with Israel. As Isaiah 54:10 puts it:

"For the mountains may depart and the hills be removed, but my steadfast love shall not depart from you, and my covenant of peace shall not be removed, says the Lord."

Catholic scholar Edward H. Flannery, citing new studies showing the deep ties between Jesus and Judaism, says the "pseudo-traditions" claiming an enmity between them must be rejected and reformed.

"The Christian churches cannot forever hold in contempt or indifference that their Master was and loved," he says. He adds that an over-Hellenized, over-Latinized Christianity needs a "re-Judaizing process" to bring it back to its founding Jewish roots and renew it more in keeping with its own inherent ideal.

The essential elements appear at hand for that process, not only in the deepening reappraisal among the churches, but in the Bible, the work of Jews, and in the church's worship forms and litanies taken from Judaism.

A priestly blessing, resounding regularly in the churches and spoken over the child Jesus at his dedication in the Temple, comes from the Jewish Torah, the blessing Moses pronounced over Aaron and his sons in Numbers 6:24-26:

"The Lord bless you and keep you: The Lord make his face to shine upon you, and be gracious to you: The Lord lift up his countenance upon you, and give you peace."

Panel OKs Turkey Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill lifting the congressional ban on military aid to Turkey has been approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by a narrow margin.

The measure will be considered by the full Senate after the Easter recess of Congress ends April 7.

Chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., said the committee's 9-7 vote Wednesday reflected concern over the possible loss of Turkey as an ally in the 15-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He said passage of the bill, requested by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, "will be helpful in bringing about negotiations" for settlement of the Greek-Turkish dispute on Cyprus.

Report Enough Corn For Seed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Feed Grains Council, a privately supported market development organization, says farmers will have enough seed corn to plant their 1975 crop this spring but that some producers will have to settle for lower-quality seed.

"While there is enough seed corn, farmers may have to use some second and third choice hybrids and about 8 per cent of the acreage will be in low-germination seed," the council said in its current newsletter.

The council said that shortages of seed may develop if farmers have to replant much of their 1975 crop. Premature frosts last September did much damage to 1974 seed crops and prevented any buildup of reserves for 1975 planting, the council said.

He adds that an over-Hellenized, over-Latinized Christianity needs a "re-Judaizing process" to bring it back to its founding Jewish roots and renew it more in keeping with its own inherent ideal.

The essential elements appear at hand for that process, not only in the deepening reappraisal among the churches, but in the Bible, the work of Jews, and in the church's worship forms and litanies taken from Judaism.

A priestly blessing, resounding regularly in the churches and spoken over the child Jesus at his dedication in the Temple, comes from the Jewish Torah, the blessing Moses pronounced over Aaron and his sons in Numbers 6:24-26:

"The Lord bless you and keep you: The Lord make his face to shine upon you, and be gracious to you: The Lord lift up his countenance upon you, and give you peace."

Panel OKs Turkey Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill lifting the congressional ban on military aid to Turkey has been approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by a narrow margin.

The measure will be considered by the full Senate after the Easter recess of Congress ends April 7.

Chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., said the committee's 9-7 vote Wednesday reflected concern over the possible loss of Turkey as an ally in the 15-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He said passage of the bill, requested by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, "will be helpful in bringing about negotiations" for settlement of the Greek-Turkish dispute on Cyprus.

Report Enough Corn For Seed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Feed Grains Council, a privately supported market development organization, says farmers will have enough seed corn to plant their 1975 crop this spring but that some producers will have to settle for lower-quality seed.

"While there is enough seed corn, farmers may have to use some second and third choice hybrids and about 8 per cent of the acreage will be in low-germination seed," the council said in its current newsletter.

The council said that shortages of seed may develop if farmers have to replant much of their 1975 crop. Premature frosts last September did much damage to 1974 seed crops and prevented any buildup of reserves for 1975 planting, the council said.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Hopes High For Shoplifter

DEAR ABBY: A little of the light has gone out of my life. My heart is heavy and I can't seem to turn my thoughts to anything else for very long.

I've just discovered that my lovely 14-year-old daughter is a shoplifter, and has been for some time. Abby, it's as though I have two daughters. One I know, and the other is a stranger to me.

I have always tried to keep the lines of communication open. My husband AND I have always tried to teach our children to be honest and law-abiding. I can't understand what went wrong. What would cause a girl who never wanted for anything, and was raised in a good Christian home to go into a store and steal? Where could she have gotten her criminal tendencies? She is going for counseling today as she refuses to talk to me about it. I pray she can be helped. I want her to grow into a beautiful young woman-inside as well as out.

Have you any words of comfort for me?

DESPAIRING MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Don't despair. Your daughter won't talk to you about it because she is too ashamed. She knows how deeply she has disappointed you. Young shoplifters do not necessarily have "criminal tendencies." They sometimes steal for the "thrill" of getting away with something, or to impress their peers with their "courage."

Professional counselors are trained to help children understand their anti-social behavior, and many young shoplifters have matured into respectable, law-abiding citizens.

DEAR ABBY: Our grandson had to marry his high school sweetheart. They had a beautiful hurry-up church wedding. We gave them a $25 check for a wedding present. Six months later they had a baby boy. Everything went along fine for about a year. Then they got a divorce.

A year later, our grandson married a divorced woman who had two small children. That was also a large church wedding. Everything was pale pink. We gave them a $25 check for a wedding gift. That lasted only seven months.

Circle Will Meet At Brown Home

Circle 2 of Good Shepherd United Methodist Church will meet 6:30 p.m. Monday at Brown Memorial Home, 158 E. Mound St., for devotions.

At 7:30 members will go to the home of Mrs. Eloise Fee, 304 S. Pickaway St., for refreshments and fellowship.

Ross County Man Held For Kidnap

WAVERLY, Ohio (AP)—Harold Tong, 30, of rural Ross County, arrested following an eight-hour siege of a house trailer by lawmen from three counties, was to be arraigned today on kidnaping charges.

Pike County Prosecutor Gordon Bevins said it was possible additional charges would be filed against Tong, who surrendered early Thursday after a night-long standoff with the law enforcement officers, including a special weapons and tactical team from Columbus.

Waverly police Chief Carson Newman said he and Ross County Sheriff Fred Heinzelman persuaded the man to surrender after being admitted to the trailer. He said they talked for more than half an hour.

Earlier, Newman said, the man identified as Tong took four Waverly policemen hostage in a south side junk yard. The officers, responding to a prowler call, came upon him and were held at gunpoint, he said. They were later released unharmed, he said.

He said Tong then fled to his secluded house trailer in southern Ross County near the Pike County line, where he barricaded himself with his wife and two children.

The wife was hospitalized for treatment of shock and minor injuries, and the children were turned over to relatives, authorities said.

Large Farms Big Moneymakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new government study shows that 410 large firms which include agriculture in their operations accounted for about $1 of every $14 worth of products sold by U.S. farmers in a recent year.

The study, published by the Agriculture Department, said that 410 "multi-establishment" firms, or conglomerates, had gross agricultural sales of nearly $3.3 billion in 1969. That was equal to about 7.4 per cent of farm product sales that year.

Compiled by the department's Economic Research Service, the report was based mainly on 1969 farm sales as shown by the 1969 Census of Agriculture and from the Dun and Bradstreet Complex Business File of 1970.

The study showed that each of the 410 firms had gross annual sales from all sources in 1969 of $1 million or more and that each had two or more business subdivisions or units, either as two or more separately operated farming units or a combination of farm and nonfarm businesses.

Collectively, the 410 firms had total sales from all sources in 1969 of $59.1 billion, meaning that the $3.3 billion in farm sales accounted for about 5.5 per cent of their over-all sales volume.

Of the 410 firms studied, 149 were primarily engaged in farming. But those had total sales from all sources of nearly $3.6 billion of which less than $1.7 billion came from farm products, or only about 46 per cent.

"That less than half the value of total sales of the farm firms was from farm production indicates the degree to which large farming firms have extended their activities into nonfarm ventures," the report said.

Donn A. Reimund, the USDA analyst who wrote the report, said Thursday that it "seemed to be a reverse twist" that firms primarily engaged in farming apparently are moving into other sources of business.

But Reimund told a reporter further that no trends or comparisons could be made from the study since it was the first attempt by USDA to examine such firms in depth.

Also, Reimund cautioned in his report, farm sales figures cited in the study "should be treated only as very crude estimates" and only for providing a rough perspective on the farming operations of the 410 firms involved.

A major reason for the study has been concern over so-called "corporate takeover" of U.S. agriculture by big companies. Reimund said he felt the report did not produce any major surprises on the general question of corporate activity in farming.

For example, USDA has published figures in recent years showing that a relatively few superfarms, each with annual sales of $100,000 or more, account for a large portion of U.S. food and fiber production. They are called "Class 1-A" farms by the department

Waterworks Facing Problems

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati waterworks, already reeling from a federal report of cancer-causing elements found in the city's drinking water, now has been ordered by the state to stop dumping sediment back into the Ohio River.

Charles Bolton, waterworks director, said the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency couldn't have acted any more inopportunistly.

He said Cincinnati had been waiting five years for the state to determine how it should proceed with the sediment. The state's order, dated March 19, gave the city 30 days to stop polluting the river or appeal.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is currently conducting further studies of carcinogens — cancer causing elements — it reported earlier had been found in drinking water here.

The U.S. EPA traced the elements, which include carbon tetrachloride, to the use of chlorine to kill bacteria. "We're now faced with two problems," Bolton said.

"Solution of the sediment problem may not be compatible with solution of the organics problem when we finally know what should be done."

Woman Wins $300,000

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Fern Plunkett of Delaware said she was afraid she wouldn't know how to play the game when she got on stage for the Ohio lottery's televised Buckeye 300 drawing Thursday night.

But Mrs. Plunkett learned in a hurry and walked off with the $300,000 top prize.

Mrs. Plunkett won by outlasting Terrence Sautter of Galion in the elimination-type drawing.

Sautter, who won the $30,000 second prize, works for Galion Manufacturing Co. He said he planned to use the money to pay some debts.

Mrs. Plunkett, who quit her secretary's job in Waldo last week, wasn't sure what she would do with her big prize.

Five other contestants took home $15,000 prizes. They included George Shumaker of Cleveland; Robert Misko and William Singer of Akron; Roy W. Thompson of Brook Park and Richard Mesnick of Richmond Heights.

Woman Bound To Grand Jury

Mary Kathryn Brons, 539 S. Scioto St., was bound to grand jury, Thursday, by Municipal Court Judge Sterling Lamb.

She was charged with passing a bad check for $20 at Super Duper April 29, 1974.

The Public Investigator

Why does a county with the population and physical importance of Pickaway have no unemployment office? If I want to file a claim, I have to go to a neighboring county.

According to a report published in The Herald Jan. 13 of this year, a part-time unemployment services office was to be opened about now in an unused room on the second floor of the Memorial Hall. By part-time, we mean that unemployment claims would be filed only one day a week.

But there has been a delay, obviously, and we think that it's with good reason.

Plans now call for a full-time operation with six people to serve you by answering questions, filing unemployment claims, and making payments along with offering work registration and job referral services on a daily basis.

The previously announced plans to create an unemployment office in Memorial Hall were scuttled by state unemployment inspectors recently. They apparently believed the office should be on the ground floor and have more space.

When the office will actually open remains a mystery. It is dependent on the so-far unsuccessful search for a suitable office building in downtown Circleville and the selection and training of a director and other employees.

Local groups must find the office space and select a director. The person chosen as director will be trained by the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services and will be supervised by that agency and the Pickaway County Community Action organization, according to Sam Detra, executive director of PICCA.

But the person hired as director must live in an area of concentrated high unemployment and be unemployed.

In Pickaway County, areas designated as having high unemployment rates are Muhlenburg, Walnut, Darby, Washington, and Jackson Townships.

The training will take approximately four to six weeks.

Credit for bringing an unemployment office to Circleville after the part-time office was closed May 20, 1974, by the state in an austerity program belongs to the Pickaway County Commissioners, the local Manpower Planning Board, and the OBES.

Commissioners Dick Tootle, Robert Liston, and Donald Strous will provide the salaries of the director and secretary through a portion of the Title VI monies available to the county under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). The state will pick up the tab for the rental of the building and the salaries of the other four proposed employees.

The federal CETA funds will be released to the OBES by the Department of Economic and Community Development. Approximately $10,000 will be available for the first year of operation.

Bob Hart, who works with the State Public Service Employment Agency, said his office will in a sense, sub-contract with the county commissioners for the service.

Commissioners earmarked part of the $80,000 CETA dollars for fiscal year 1975 "to respond to the crisis of rising unemployment," according to Tootle.

"It's especially important at this time, with so many people unemployed," he said, adding that the commissioners felt it would be a better long-term investment to initiate a full-time, full-service agency.

"We look at it as another service to the people of Pickaway County," he said. "It's one of the many activities the county commissioners are involved with that would never have been thought of several years ago."

Are lunch breaks for school children mandatory? My daughter, who is a high school junior, currently is getting no break for lunch. She is on split sessions which begin at 7 a.m. and she doesn't get home until about 1:30 p.m.

By law, each student and teacher in Ohio schools are obligated to take an uninterrupted lunch period of not less than 30 minutes, according to Ed Martin, superintendent of Pickaway County Schools.

Apparently, the problem your daughter is experiencing is the result of a conflict in scheduling a driver's education course. School administrators will be happy to talk with you about the situation.

Ross County Man Held For Kidnap

WAVERLY, Ohio (AP)—Harold Tong, 30, of rural Ross County, arrested following an eight-hour siege of a house trailer by lawmen from three counties, was to be arraigned today on kidnaping charges.

Pike County Prosecutor Gordon Bevins said it was possible additional charges would be filed against Tong, who surrendered early Thursday after a night-long standoff with the law enforcement officers, including a special weapons and tactical team from Columbus.

Waverly police Chief Carson Newman said he and Ross County Sheriff Fred Heinzelman persuaded the man to surrender after being admitted to the trailer. He said they talked for more than half an hour.

Earlier, Newman said, the man identified as Tong took four Waverly policemen hostage in a south side junk yard. The officers, responding to a prowler call, came upon him and were held at gunpoint, he said. They were later released unharmed, he said.

He said Tong then fled to his secluded house trailer in southern Ross County near the Pike County line, where he barricaded himself with his wife and two children.

The wife was hospitalized for treatment of shock and minor injuries, and the children were turned over to relatives, authorities said.

Occasional rain was likely over Ohio today, with the northern counties expected to have some sleet or freezing rain.

In the central and southern regions, there was a possibility of thundershowers.

Temperatures were forecast to rise in the 40s in northern Ohio and in the 50s in the south during the day.

Ohio was on the fringes of a storm that brought the second blizzard within a week to the northern Plains States.

Meanwhile, a low pressure system centered over South Dakota moved northward while a high pressure extending from Hudson Bay to the mid Atlantic coast continued retreating slowly eastward.

A new low was expected to develop over the lower Mississippi Valley today and move northeast bringing cooler weather by Saturday.

The outlook for Easter Sunday was not promising. The forecast said cool with a chance of rain or snow, and afternoon temperatures in the 40s.

Large Farms Big Money-makers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new government study shows that 410 large farms which include agriculture in their operations accounted for about $1 of every $14 worth of products sold by U.S. farmers in a recent year.

The study, published by the Agriculture Department, said that 410 "multi-establishment" firms, or conglomerates, had gross agricultural sales of nearly $3.3 billion in 1969. That was equal to about 7.4 per cent of farm product sales that year.

Compiled by the department's Economic Research Service, the report was based mainly on 1969 farm sales as shown by the 1969 Census of Agriculture and from the Dun and Bradstreet Complex Business File of 1970.

The study showed that each of the 410 firms had gross annual sales from all sources in 1969 of $1 million or more and that each had two or more business subdivisions or units, either as two or more separately operated farming units or a combination of farm and nonfarm businesses.

Collectively, the 410 firms had total

sales from all sources in 1969 of $59.1 billion, meaning that the $3.3 billion in farm sales accounted for about 5.5 per cent of their over-all sales volume.

Of the 410 firms studied, 149 were primarily engaged in farming. But those had total sales from all sources of nearly $3.6 billion of which less than $1.7 billion came from farm products, or only about 46 per cent.

"That less than half the value of total sales of the farm firms was from farm production indicates the degree to which large farming firms have extended their activities into nonfarm ventures," the report said.

Donn A. Reimund, the USDA analyst who wrote the report, said Thursday that it "seemed to be a reverse twist" that firms primarily engaged in farming apparently are moving into other sources of business.

But Reimund told a reporter further that no trends or comparisons could be made from the study since it was the first attempt by USDA to examine such firms in depth.

Also, Reimund cautioned in his report, farm sales figures cited in the study "should be treated only as very crude estimates" and only for providing a rough perspective on the farming operations of the 410 firms involved.

A major reason for the study has been concern over so-called "corporate takeover" of U.S. agriculture by big companies. Reimund said he felt the report did not produce any major surprises on the general question of corporate activity in farming.

For example, USDA has published figures in recent years showing that a relatively few superfarms, each with annual sales of $100,000 or more, account for a large portion of U.S. food and fiber production. They are called "Class 1-A" farms by the department

Waterworks Facing Problems

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati waterworks, already reeling from a federal report of cancer-causing elements found in the city's drinking water, now has been ordered by the state to stop dumping sediment back into the Ohio River.

Charles Bolton, waterworks director, said the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency couldn't have acted any more inopportunistly.

He said Cincinnati had been waiting five years for the state to determine how it should proceed with the sediment. The state's order, dated March 19, gave the city 30 days to stop polluting the river or appeal.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is currently conducting further studies of carcinogens — cancer causing elements — it reported earlier had been found in drinking water here.

The U.S. EPA traced the elements, which include carbon tetrachloride, to the use of chlorine to kill bacteria. "We're now faced with two problems," Bolton said.

"Solution of the sediment problem may not be compatible with solution of the organics problem when we finally know what should be done."

Woman Wins $300,000

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Fern Plunkett of Delaware said she was afraid she wouldn't know how to play the game when she got on stage for the Ohio lottery's televised Buckeye 300 drawing Thursday night.

But Mrs. Plunkett learned in a hurry and walked off with the $300,000 top prize.

Mrs. Plunkett won by outlasting Terrence Sautter of Galion in the elimination-type drawing.

Sautter, who won the $30,000 second prize, works for Galion Manufacturing Co. He said he planned to use the money to pay some debts.

Mrs. Plunkett, who quit her secretary's job in Waldo last week, wasn't sure what she would do with her big prize.

Five other contestants took home $15,000 prizes. They included George Shumaker of Cleveland; Robert Misko and William Singer of Akron; Roy W. Thompson of Brook Park and Richard Mesnick of Richmond Heights.

History Books Shun Resurrection

NEW YORK (AP) — Modern textbooks of ancient history, in dealing with Jesus, usually give a condensed account of his life and relate that he was crucified on orders of Pontius Pilate. But they shun dealing with the Easter phenomenon — the Resurrection.

They generally simply pass over it in silence or with qualifications, shifting at once to the growth of the early church in Jerusalem and elsewhere, with scarcely a clue to explain what actually fired that sudden extraordinary growth.

Dr. Paul L. Maier, professor of ancient history at Western Michigan University, suggests that secular histories may be ignoring some valid and objective evidence that sheds light on the case.

Noting that it generally is assumed that the Resurrection can be approached only in faith and not through the discipline of history, he says this is not entirely so, especially in regard to supporting details such as the empty tomb.

"Nor is all the evidence for the Easter phenomenon confined to the New Testament, as so many Christians and non-Christians alike seem to assume," he writes in the weekly, Christianity Today. "The science of history can penetrate at least to the outer peripheries of the events of the first Easter, and that it detects at these fringes is extraordinary."

He says "any ancient historian would have to admit that a profound religious explosion occurred in Jerusalem shortly after Christ's crucifixion, since the repercussions shook distant Rome with incredible speed."

In that imperial capital, only 31 years after the crucifixion, the Roman historian Tacitus, who detested Christianity, records that a "great number" of its followers so strongly believed in Christ's resurrection that they gave up their lives in Nero's persecution of 64 A.D., Maier points out.

"For a philosophy or teaching to spread that far that fast is absolutely unparalleled in the ancient world, and historians have not devoted enough attention to the implications here," he says.

He cites other secondary evidence, what he terms "fallout" of the Easter event, including the striking psychological change that transformed the frightened, hiding apostles into bold spokesmen for the faith at the risk of death.

"Myths do not make martyrs," Maier observes.

Recounting various other "telling evidence for a mighty launching" of the faith, he says this "peripheral evidence" ordinarily would be sufficient to establish the Resurrection historically, but historians don't stamp it historical fact for one simple reason — because it "involves the supernatural."

Maier, a Lutheran and author of several works on ancient times, including "First Easter" put out by Harper & Row, says historians "have long overlooked" an important clue to Easter — the empty tomb.

It is reported not only in the gospels, he says, but in other ancient sources, including those opposed to Christianity.

Group To Fight For Arms Rights

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—A new group calling itself Ohio Citizens for Gun Rights has been formed here to work for placing an anti-gun control constitutional amendment on the ballot.

Claude Hicks of Newark, who heads the group, said members will circulate petitions for a vote on an amendment to restrict the legislature from controlling gun usage.

"We no longer trust the legislature to respect our interests," said Hicks, who contended that lawmakers are trying to fight crime with gun control while also usurping citizens' right to bear and keep arms.

Quite A Girl!

Aunt Sara looks about as stern as they come, doesn't she? As they used to say, "butter wouldn't melt in her mouth." I don't remember the occasion of this picture, since I was the baby. But I do remember Great Aunt Sara very vividly and she was quite a girl!

She was what they call a "pillar of the church." She must have baked an astronomical number of chicken pies for church suppers and served on almost every committee at one time or another. You might say she was pious, a word we don't usually care for. What I mean is that she revered her God and loved Him.

She also had a tremendous sense of humor. I remember she used to tell the funniest stories.

The point is this. So often people mistake religious fervor for a certain "holier than thou" attitude. They don't believe that humor and religion go together. But Aunt Sara proved them wrong. The Church encompasses all of life—humor and wit—as well as love and compassion . . . and so much more! You can easily find out for yourself.

"The science of history can penetrate at least to the outer peripheries of the events of the first Easter, and that it detects at these fringes is extraordinary."

He says "any ancient historian would have to admit that a profound religious explosion occurred in Jerusalem shortly after Christ's crucifixion, since the repercussions shook distant Rome with incredible speed."

In that imperial capital, only 31 years after the crucifixion, the Roman historian Tacitus, who detested Christianity, records that a "great number" of its followers so strongly believed in Christ's resurrection that they gave up their lives in Nero's persecution of 64 A.D., Maier points out.

"For a philosophy or teaching to spread that far that fast is absolutely unparalleled in the ancient world, and historians have not devoted enough attention to the implications here," he says.

He cites other secondary evidence, what he terms "fallout" of the Easter event, including the striking psychological change that transformed the frightened, hiding apostles into bold spokesmen for the faith at the risk of death.

"Myths do not make martyrs," Maier observes.

Recounting various other "telling evidence for a mighty launching" of the faith, he says this "peripheral evidence" ordinarily would be sufficient to establish the Resurrection historically, but historians don't stamp it historical fact for one simple reason — because it "involves the supernatural."

Maier, a Lutheran and author of several works on ancient times, including "First Easter" put out by Harper & Row, says historians "have long overlooked" an important clue to Easter — the empty tomb.

It is reported not only in the gospels, he says, but in other ancient sources, including those opposed to Christianity.

Group To Fight For Arms Rights

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—A new group calling itself Ohio Citizens for Gun Rights has been formed here to work for placing an anti-gun control constitutional amendment on the ballot.

Claude Hicks of Newark, who heads the group, said members will circulate petitions for a vote on an amendment to restrict the legislature from controlling gun usage.

"We no longer trust the legislature to respect our interests," said Hicks, who contended that lawmakers are trying to fight crime with gun control while also usurping citizens' right to bear and keep arms.

Quite A Girl!

Aunt Sara looks about as stern as they come, doesn't she? As they used to say, "butter wouldn't melt in her mouth." I don't remember the occasion of this picture, since I was the baby. But I do remember Great Aunt Sara very vividly and she was quite a girl!

She was what they call a "pillar of the church." She must have baked an astronomical number of chicken pies for church suppers and served on almost every committee at one time or another. You might say she was pious, a word we don't usually care for. What I mean is that she revered her God and loved Him.

She also had a tremendous sense of humor. I remember she used to tell the funniest stories.

The point is this. So often people mistake religious fervor for a certain "holier than thou" attitude. They don't believe that humor and religion go together. But Aunt Sara proved them wrong. The Church encompasses all of life—humor and wit—as well as love and compassion . . . and so much more! You can easily find out for yourself.

JOE RIFFLE

By EVELYN HOWARD

The new student this week comes from El Monte, Calif., where he attended El Monte High School.

Joe Riffle, a new sophomore at Circleville High, is the son of Daniel E. Riffle, who resides at Route 3. He has a brother, Mark, who is thirteen.

Although Joe doesn't have many favorites, he did say that physical education was his favorite subject.

His only opinion of CHS is that it is much smaller than his old school, which had about 9,000 students.

Miss Roper Works At Mound Street

By LEIGH HIRTZ

Tennis, swimming, traveling and sprint car racing are just a few hobbies of this week's new teacher, Miss Carol Roper, a sixth grade teacher at Mound Street elementary.

MISS CAROL ROPER

Miss Roper attended Bowling Green State University where she received her bachelor of science degree in elementary education. During college, Miss Roper was a member of Delta Zeta Sorority and Student Council, and she also worked at the BGSU infirmary and tutored at a children's home.

"I enjoy working with upper elementary children. Most often they are eager to learn, and the subject matter I have to teach is interesting for me as well." These are Miss Roper's feelings about her work. She believes that the youth of today are quite different from when she was younger.

"Children are much more difficult to motivate and really present a challenge."

Formerly from Woodville, Miss Roper later moved to Defiance, and now resides on Middletown Avenue, Columbus.

About Circleville, Miss Roper stated, "It is a pleasant little town and the people here are very friendly and helpful."

DECA Girl Works At Meat Market

THERESA IMLER

By SUSAN SIMISON

Working at Dailey's Meat Market as a sales clerk is DECA student of the week, Theresa Imler.

Theresa works at Dailey's Meat Market 39½ hours each week. Some of the duties of her job include running the check-out, working at the meat case, working in the back, and putting up stock.

Theresa thinks it is easier to get a job if a student is in DECA because employers know where jobs are open. She commented, "This job has prepared me for a future vocation by meeting the public, being around people, understanding them, and helping me to understand myself."

Theresa's likes are Lloyd, Sundays, pizza, music, and Elmer. She dislikes fakey people and getting up early.

This DECA student lives at 405 Avon Drive with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Imler. She has one brother and two sisters.

She said her plans after graduation are to be a housewife and possibly to keep on working.

Communications will be present.

Financial Aids, admissions, housing, ROTC, and University College representatives will also be present. This is a convenient opportunity to obtain first-hand information about O.U. programs and opportunities.

Claims Court Shift Urged

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A Toledo law professor has urged the city's small claims court to prohibit lawyers from representing clients in the court.

Paul Sigal, associate law professor at the University of Toledo, said the use of legal counsel in the low-cost court does not allow "little people a chance to have it out."

According to a study made by Sigal and three law students, if neither plaintiff nor defendant used an attorney, the defendant lost 93 per cent of the time.

But if the defendant had legal counsel and the plaintiff didn't, the defendant won 80 per cent of the time.

If both sides had a lawyer, the study showed, their chances of winning were about even.

The small claims court was set up as a division of Toledo Municipal Court to allow collection of debts up to $300 by both individuals and businesses.

Legal counsel is not required and a small filing fee is charged.

Congress Shuns Indochina Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is beginning a 10-day Easter recess without acting on President Ford's urgent January requests for additional military aid for Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, arguing in favor of more aid, said Wednesday the fundamental question is "whether we will deliberately destroy an ally" by withholding aid from South Vietnam.

To sacrifice friends in one region is to destroy the "confidence of friends everywhere," Kissinger told a news conference.

President Ford asked Congress Jan. 28 to authorize $222 million in extra arms aid for Cambodia and to appropriate $300 million additional military assistance for South Vietnam to help those governments stave off military assaults until June 30.

A reluctant Congress has deferred action on both requests, with Democratic majorities in the House and Senate voting lopsided disapproval in party caucuses. Senate Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin, in a Senate speech Wednesday, rebuked the Democrats for delaying votes on Ford's requests. Griffin contended that Congress was "turning its back on allies in Indochina who are struggling to defend themselves."

A scaled down authorization of $82.5 million in military aid for Cambodia — with a complete cutoff June 30 — awaits Senate action after April 7. The measure has won a 9-8 endorsement of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Trade Balance Looks Good

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp drop in oil imports left the nation's trade accounts with the biggest monthly surplus on record in February, the government reported. The Commerce Department figures showed that total imports slipped 18.2 per cent, overcoming by a wide margin a 6.6 per cent drop in exports. The result was a $917 million trade surplus. The figure marked a sharp reversal in January's $210.5 million deficit.

Two Seniors Cheer Their Last Cheer

KAREN BAKER AND VICKI MARSHALL

By KATHY BOWERS

Senior cheerleaders, Karen Baker and Vicki Marshall, cheered for the last time at the tournament basketball game against Springfield Shawnee. They have added a lot of spirit to the CHS student body.

Karen is captain of the squad and is in charge of keeping everything organized. She was a cheerleader her sophomore year also. She says people respond to cheerleaders.

"Every game is a rewarding experience, to know that you're leading the school spirit and helping the fans back the team," says Karen. "The most rewarding experience I've had in cheerleading is seeing and feeling pride in the players, fans, and in myself during games."

Vicki was also a cheerleader her freshman and sophomore years. She feels that cheering has helped her to learn how to work well with others. She said she enjoys cheering at fall sports and being a part of the team.

"It's been a good experience to be in front of people. When I'm down on the floor cheering, I don't realize how many people are in the stands watching. I just concentrate on getting everyone to yell," says Vicki.

Indians Seek Burial Site Protection

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An American Indian delegation has asked Ohio legislators to enact a law protecting ancient burial sites from desecration by developers and "amateur" archaeologists.

Tukemas, the 34-year-old principle chief of the Shawnee nation, told the legislators the Indians did not want special consideration, but sought "to be treated with an equal hand."

"We're not all that different," he said in testimony before the House Energy and Environment Committee. "We regard burial places of our people in much the same way your people regard burial grounds of their ancestors."

Rep. John M. Scott, R-63 Fairborn, the sponsor of the bill, said there were no laws or regulations protecting Indian burial sites. "They are not classified as public cemeteries," he said.

"It seems to me," Scott said that the "rights of a minority are being violated."

Scott's proposal would require anyone wishing to excavate an Indian mound or burial ground to first notify the Ohio Historical Society which would have a 90-day waiting period to survey the site and report on its findings. Violations of this procedure would constitute a first degree misdemeanor.

However, Scott conceded that developers could go ahead with their excavations after the 90 days regardless of the society's report. "This is not ironclad," he said there is no force of law that the diggings be abandoned.

The tall, articulate Tukemas, 34, was one of six Indians who attended the hearing, attired in traditional feathered headdress, beads and moccasins.

Tukemas, who said he represented

On Books And Activities At The Library

Books . . . books . . . books! Like the Spring flowers, new books are bustin' out all over the shelves of the Pickaway County District Public Library. Many exciting titles have just arrived so pick yourself a bouquet of good reading.

There's a lengthy reserve list for "Helter Skelter" by Bugliosi, but it is in circulation. That's the new book about the Manson murders. "A Bridge Too Far" by Ryan has also arrived and is circulating. It's the powerful story about the WWII Battle of Arnhem. When you're called to pick up a book reserved for you, please come in within 24 hours to get it. Remember to return it promptly so others may enjoy reading it too.

Three important writers in the gothic and romantic suspense area have new titles out. Philippa Carr offers "The Witch From The Sea." It's a novel of love, betrayal, murder and witchcraft in Elizabethan England. Carr fans should find it a worthy successor to her earlier works.

Phyllis Whitney enjoys an outstanding reputation as a writer of romantic suspense. "Spindrift" is her latest novel. Set in palatial Newport, it's a tale of sinister doings as a young woman probes her father's alleged suicide.

A blend of plot, setting and fascinating characters makes "Cry Witch" by Naomi Hintze a compelling tale of suspense.

If stories about the medical profession intrigue you, Elizabeth Seifert has written another novel in her series about doctors. This one is titled "Four Doctors, Four Wives."

Benjamin Seigel unfolds a story of a group of doctors who join together to open a clinic in a small town. "Four Doctors" is a novel about the group and the emotional and medical problems they find themselves caught up in.

"The Virus Killer" by Irwin Sobel is a novel about two doctors, one dedicated to medicine, the other to money. The hospital infighting over the choice of a new chief keeps the plot moving.

Historical fiction is represented by two well-known authors this week. "The Stonewall Brigade" by Frank G. Slaughter is a novel of the American Civil War. Fact and fiction are woven around General Stonewall Jackson and his Confederate brigade. Romantic interest is provided by a young army doctor and the niece of a famous Cherokee leader.

"Madame Serpent" by Jean Plaidy is another well-written historical novel by this prolific author. This one is based on the life of Catherine de Medici and the events that led her to become an evil woman.

Arthur Hailey brings his talent for writing about everyday things in an exciting way to his newest novel "The Moneychangers." It's a fast-moving story about money, people, banking and a power-struggle between two bank officers.

"Celebration" is the final work of Harvey Swados. It explores the feelings of a 90 year old supporter of youth movements of every kind as he finds himself caught in conflict with the Establishment about to pay homage to him.

"Years Of The Hungry Tiger" is a big book by John Gordon Davis. It's the story of Jake McAdam, a tough British cop in Hong Kong in the 1960's, and his love affair with a beautiful Chinese Communist.

Paul Gallico has sent Mrs. 'Arris off on another exciting mission. This time "Mrs. 'Arris Goes to Moscow" and was never in better form.

"The Comic" by Brian Glanville is the story of a successful comedian as he searches his own life to find out why he is compelled to make people laugh.

Double agents, extortionists, and a mysterious sunken cargo are all topics for new suspense novels. "The Golden Cockatrice" by Gavin Black mixes rival shipping firms and double agents. "A Bridge Of Magpies" by G. Jenkins sends an ex-naval officer in search of a mysterious cargo, and "Night Stop" by Elleston Trevor pits an extortionist against a political hopeful.

Three new biographies about American entertainers include: "Jayne Mansfield" by Martha Saxton, "Judy Garland" by Anne Edwards and "Milton Berle" authored by himself.

William Safire, a Nixon speech-writer, has written his version of the Pre-Watergate White House. "Before The Fall" gives his impression of Mr. Nixon as a man with several personalities.

Catherine Marshall's new book "Something More" presents the author in a new light as she guides her readers in search of a deeper faith.

Do stop by soon and look over some of these new additions to the shelves. You're bound to find something to whet your reading appetite.

There's a lengthy reserve list for "Helter Skelter" by Bugliosi, but it is in circulation. That's the new book about the Manson murders. "A Bridge Too Far" by Ryan has also arrived and is circulating. It's the powerful story about the WWII Battle of Arnhem. When you're called to pick up a book reserved for you, please come in within 24 hours to get it. Remember to return it promptly so others may enjoy reading it too.

Three important writers in the gothic and romantic suspense area have new titles out. Philippa Carr offers "The Witch From The Sea." It's a novel of love, betrayal, murder and witchcraft in Elizabethan England. Carr fans should find it a worthy successor to her earlier works.

Phyllis Whitney enjoys an outstanding reputation as a writer of romantic suspense. "Spindrift" is her latest novel. Set in palatial Newport, it's a tale of sinister doings as a young woman probes her father's alleged suicide.

A blend of plot, setting and fascinating characters makes "Cry Witch" by Naomi Hintze a compelling tale of suspense.

If stories about the medical profession intrigue you, Elizabeth Seifert has written another novel in her series about doctors. This one is titled "Four Doctors, Four Wives."

Benjamin Seigel unfolds a story of a group of doctors who join together to open a clinic in a small town. "Four Doctors" is a novel about the group and the emotional and medical problems they find themselves caught up in.

Indians Seek Burial Site Protection

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An American Indian delegation has asked Ohio legislators to enact a law protecting ancient burial sites from desecration by developers and "amateur" archaeologists.

Tukemas, the 34-year-old principle chief of the Shawnee nation, told the legislators the Indians did not want special consideration, but sought "to be treated with an equal hand."

"We're not all that different," he said in testimony before the House Energy and Environment Committee. "We regard burial places of our people in much the same way your people regard burial grounds of their ancestors."

Rep. John M. Scott, R-63 Fairborn, the sponsor of the bill, said there were no laws or regulations protecting Indian burial sites. "They are not classified as public cemeteries," he said.

"It seems to me," Scott said that the "rights of a minority are being violated."

Scott's proposal would require anyone wishing to excavate an Indian mound or burial ground to first notify the Ohio Historical Society which would have a 90-day waiting period to survey the site and report on its findings. Violations of this procedure would constitute a first degree misdemeanor.

However, Scott conceded that developers could go ahead with their excavations after the 90 days regardless of the society's report. "This is not ironclad," he said there is no force of law that the diggings be abandoned.

The tall, articulate Tukemas, 34, was one of six Indians who attended the hearing, attired in traditional feathered headdresses, beads and moccasins.

Tukemas, who said he represented

4,200 Indians in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky in the Tecumseh Federation, placed most of the blame for desecration on amateur archaeologists out for a "weekend adventure."

"There is really no further need for (archaeological) excavation," he said. "All of the major sites are so obvious. Everything that can be done at these sites has been done."

Willie's Dillies

By BILL McGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

Now that winter sports have concluded their seasons and "spring" is on the scene it's time to turn our attention to the sports that cover the diamonds and the ovals.

Once again it's spike time for the schools and if we could just get a break from the weather man we would be back in business.

Maybe we start our scheduling a little early in the baseball and track category as we seem to run into a rash of postponements during the later part of March.

It's a big disappointment to the players and fans alike when they prepare for a baseball game or a track meet only to have it called off due to snow or cold weather. Maybe it would be better if we began the season in the early part of April.

Some people will say that they have to start the schedule early to get the games in but in our book most of these games are called off and have to be made up at a later date or cancelled altogether.

There is nothing more enjoyable, after a long winter, than to have the sun come out and send the temperatures into the high 60's or 70's.

Then it's time to take off for the old ballpark or track field, lean back in the bleacher seats, and watch a bunch of fine young men perform to the best of their ability.

The baseball games and track meets usually start late in the afternoon or take place on Saturday. So this gives most of us an opportunity to take in the various events of our choice.

These young men work just as hard as any other athlete and display some fine athletic ability. This, coupled with some fine warm weather, makes for an interesting afternoon.

They deserve some backing as they are carrying your school's reputation and deserve some staunch support.

Let's all get together this year and make it a real big spring season for the kids in Pickaway County.

We'll be looking for you.

Our "fearless" forecast—Tom Kite will be stringing them out and flying high in the Heritage Golf Classis.

Until next time, have a nice day-be a good sport.

Cavaliers Trip Bulls; Win 86-83

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Like Rodney Dangerfield, the Cleveland Cavaliers haven't been getting no respect. Unlike Rodney Dangerfield, that may be about to change.

"I think now that with two straight wins over the Bulls a lot of teams will have more respect for us," Jim Clemons said Thursday night after the Cavaliers defeated the Bulls in Chicago 86-83.

Last Thursday, the Cavs won in Cleveland 87-83. Obviously, the home court advantage is worth exactly one point. The latest triumph put the Cavaliers one game ahead of idle New York and Houston as the three clubs battle for two playoff berths in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference.

In the only other NBA games, the Golden State Warriors defeated the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 111-103 and the Detroit Pistons trimmed the Phoenix Suns 91-79.

Clemons scored a crucial basket down the stretch and he and Dwight Davis combined on two earlier fourth-quarter baskets to help the Cavaliers defeat the Bulls. It was their first victory ever in Chicago in their five-year existence.

Clemons scored on two fast breaks engineered by Davis before Chicago got eight consecutive points to close Cleveland's lead to 83-79 with 1:19 remaining. Clemons then sewed up the game on a turn-around jumper with a minute left.

"A lot of teams are taking us lightly because we are a young team," Clemons said. "I'm convinced in a couple of years we will be in the same stage as far as ability and experience that Chicago is in now."

Five Cavaliers hit in double figures, paced by Jim Chones' 16 points and Dick Snyder's 15. Meanwhile, Jim Brewer held high-scoring Bob Love to 16 points while Snyder held Norm Van Lier to 11.

Warriors 111, Kings 103
Golden State's triumph, paced by Rick Barry's 34 points and Derrek Dickey's 23 rebounds, gave the Warriors the best record in the Western Conference by one game over Chicago.

Pistons 91, Suns 79
Bob Lanier scored 26 points and played a big role in holding Phoenix to an all-time low of 10 in the third period. During the third quarter Phoenix converted only five of 19 shots while Lanier went on a 12-point binge to break the game open.

NCAA Finals Near

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Adolph Rupp, the man who made University of Kentucky basketball famous, arrived with the club for the National Collegiate Athletic Association finals in San Diego.

But this was a team that someone else built.

Rupp, now 73, was forced into retirement three years ago when he didn't want to quit. Joe B. Hall, one of his former players, assumed the reins the school took from the Baron when he reached 70.

The current team, with its 25-4 record, came via recruiting by Hall. This is his team, without the influence of Rupp, whose clubs in the past won four NCAA titles, 27 Southeast Conference crowns and two score All-Americans.

"I'm very, very proud of Coach Hall," now says Rupp, who wasn't happy to greet any successor. "He's done a great job. I think this is the strongest Kentucky team since 1948-49 and I'd be disappointed if they don't win it all."

Kentucky ranks as the No. 2 choice behind UCLA, which seeks its 10th

NCAA title under Coach John Wooden since 1964. In that long span, the Bruins have only lost twice—the latest to last year's eventual champion, North Carolina State, which didn't qualify for this tournament.

The physically powerful Wildcats of Kentucky open Saturday against surprising Syracuse at 12:10 p.m. PDT, followed by the UCLA-Louisville battle at 2:10. The winners tangle for the national title on Monday with all games at the already sold-out San Diego Sports Arena.

Hall's Kentucky team won No. 2 rating in The Associated Press poll behind UCLA after the regional tournaments. The Wildcats handed the previous No. 1, Indiana, its only loss of the season, 92-90.

"Needless to say," commented Hall, "we're mighty glad to be here."

Victory over Indiana marked the high point for Hall and Kentucky hasn't won the NCAA tournament since 1958, well before the advent of the Wooden championship era at UCLA.

Although the Wildcats are favored over Syracuse, at least one member of the coaching staff publicly worries.

"We're not bouncing back," said assistant coach Dick Parsons. "That Indiana game must have drained the players. We haven't got anything done all week. We've got work to do to catch up."

Half Of Ohio All-Star Team Named

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Phil Hubbard of Canton McKinley and Frankie Sanders of Dayton Stivers, two of The Associated Press state Players of the Year, were selected today to play for the Ohio All-Stars in the first Coliseum Classic Friday, April 11.

Five of the 10-man Ohio squad were announced by the sponsoring Knights of Columbus. The Ohioans will face the United States All-Stars in the game matching outstanding high school basketball seniors in the spacious Coliseum near Cleveland.

The 6-foot-7 Hubbard averaged more than 26 points per game and was claimed The AP Class AAA Player of the Year.

Sanders, who led Stivers to a runner-up finish in the state tournament, won similar honors in Class AA after hitting points at a better than 31 clip a contest. Sanders, 6-foot-5, is the greatest scorer ever in Dayton scholastic history.

Also picked for the Ohio team were 6-foot Greg Cobb of Olmsted Falls, 5-9 Lloyd Franklin of Cleveland Heights and 6-5 Fred Johnson of Barberton.

The remaining five spots on the state all-stars will be filled next week.

Hiatt, Ginny's Win Cage Tilts

In Thursday Night action in the Stoutsville Independent Basketball Tournament at Stoutsville Junior High School Hiatt Grocery and Ginny's Beauty Salon came away with victories.

Hiatt downed Alexander's Landing, 96-89. Dave Kraft paced the winners with 28 points while Bob Kemmerer had 22 for Alexander's.

Ginny's Beauty Salon crushed Jerry's Drive In, 115-92. Duffy led Ginny's with 33 markers while Schooley and Baughman both had 29 for Jerry's.

The next action will be Tuesday when Long Branch meets Pike County at 6:30 p.m. and Super Duper goes against Porter's Dry Wall at 8 p.m.

San Francisco Giants Look For 1st Place

PHOENIX (AP) — Manager Wes Westrum, perhaps because he participated in two miracles as a Giants player, speaks with conviction when he says, "We're aiming for first place."

He doesn't even think it will take a miracle this time to turn the San Francisco Giants, a fifth place finisher last season, into a contender—just some good execution of fundamentals by what figures to be major league baseball's youngest team.

Bobby Murcer, at 28, probably will be the team's oldest starter. The right fielder obtained in the winter trade of Bobby Bonds to the New York Yankees

Roger Freed Leaves Cincinnati Camp

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Roger Freed, 28 and a non-roster player, has left the Cincinnati Reds camp for his California home, apparently discouraged by his .150 batting average.

Freed, an outfielder and utility catcher, played with Indianapolis in the American Association, the Reds' Class AAA team, last season. He hit .256 with Indianapolis and 19 home runs.

He was Minor League Player of the Year in 1970 at Rochester, N.Y.

Sunny Lad Winner Of Latonia Feature

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Sunny Lad won the $5,100 featured eighth race Thursday night at Latonia by 2½ lengths in 1:14 3-5 for the six furlongs.

The track is closed today because of Good Friday.

The winner paid $8, $4.40 and $3.20. King's Voice placed, paying $17 and $5 and Tuka Chief was third for $3.20.

The 4-1 daily double combination of Count Paco and Freeze Menow paid $19.80.

Attendance was 5,114 and betting totaled $558,085.

Cloverleaf Jim Wins Feature At Lebanon

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Cloverleaf Jim won the $1,100 featured pace mile in the ninth race at Lebanon Thursday night in 2:14 and paid $5.20, $3.40 and $3.

By No Ko placed, paying $3 and $2.80, and Linworth Time was third for $4.

Henson Chas and Seneca Lad, 4-5, paid $44.60 in the daily double. The crowd of 1,583 bet $134,073.

Youngest pitcher on the St. Louis Cardinals roster is 21-year-old Tony Gonzalez. He had a 9-1 record with Arkansas last season.

Tiger Nine Sets Roster

Coach John Lawhorn has nine returning lettermen to form the nucleus of the 1975 baseball edition of the Circleville Tigers who were slated to open the season Wednesday but had to cancel due to the weather.

Perry Hoskins, who can handle shortstop or second base, and Phil Roll, who pitches, plays first base or the outfield, are the only double letter winners on the squad.

Other letter winners are: Pat McNaughton, OF; Biff Bumgarner, 3B-P; Brent Mancini, P-OF; Dave Bevan, 2B-SS; Tim McNaughton, OF-1B; Randy Thomas, P-1B-3B; and Mark Mace, catcher.

Other players making a bid for berths on the team are: Doug McGlone, P; Jerry Strawser, 2B-SS; Alan Ranck, P-3B; Tom Schere, 2B-OF; John Payne, C-1B; Bo Barthelmas, 1B-OF; Dave Cline, P-1B-OF; Gary Combs, 2B-OF; Mike Radcliff, OF; Brad Allison, OF-SS; Mearle Logan, SS-OF; Keith Sanders, 3B-OF; Brian Fath, SS-2B; Brian Augustine, 2B; and Tim Hartinger, 1B-OF.

Tom Cole will handle the reserve coach's duties while John Russell will be the team manager.

If Catfish Hunter draws the opening day pitching assignment of April 8 in Cleveland, he will be making his Yankee debut on his 29th birthday. That's also the number on his uniform.

SPORTS

The Circleville Herald, Friday March 28, 1975

Willie's Dillies

By BILL MCGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

Now that winter sports have concluded their seasons and "spring" is on the scene it's time to turn our attention to the sports that cover the diamonds and the ovals.

Once again it's spike time for the schools and if we could just get a break from the weather man we would be back in business.

Maybe we start our scheduling a little early in the baseball and track category as we seem to run into a rash of postponements during the later part of March.

It's a big disappointment to the players and fans alike when they prepare for a baseball game or a track meet only to have it called off due to snow or cold weather. Maybe it would be better if we began the season in the early part of April.

Some people will say that they have to start the schedule early to get the games in but in our book most of these games are called off and have to be made up at a later date or cancelled altogether.

There is nothing more enjoyable, after a long winter, than to have the sun come out and send the temperatures into the high 60's or 70's.

Then it's time to take off for the old ballpark or track field, lean back in the bleacher seats, and watch a bunch of fine young men perform to the best of their ability.

The baseball games and track meets usually start late in the afternoon or take place on Saturday. So this gives most of us an opportunity to take in the various events of our choice.

These young men work just as hard as any other athlete and display some fine athletic ability. This, coupled with some fine warm weather, makes for an interesting afternoon.

They deserve some backing as they are carrying your school's reputation and deserve some staunch support.

Let's all get together this year and make it a real big spring season for the kids in Pickaway County.

We'll be looking for you.

Our "fearless" forecast—Tom Kite will be stringing them out and flying high in the Heritage Golf Classis.

Until next time, have a nice day-be a good sport.

Cavaliers Trip Bulls; Win 86-83

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Like Rodney Dangerfield, the Cleveland Cavaliers haven't been getting no respect. Unlike Rodney Dangerfield, that may be about to change.

"I think now that with two straight wins over the Bulls a lot of teams will have more respect for us," Jim Clemons said Thursday night after the Cavaliers defeated the Bulls in Chicago 86-83.

Last Thursday, the Cavs won in Cleveland 87-83. Obviously, the home court advantage is worth exactly one point. The latest triumph put the Cavaliers one game ahead of idle New York and Houston as the three clubs battle for two playoff berths in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference.

In the only other NBA games, the Golden State Warriors defeated the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 111-103 and the Detroit Pistons trimmed the Phoenix Suns 91-79.

Clemons scored a crucial basket down the stretch and he and Dwight Davis combined on two earlier fourth-quarter baskets to help the Cavaliers defeat the Bulls. It was their first victory ever in Chicago in their five-year existence.

Clemons scored on two fast breaks engineered by Davis before Chicago got eight consecutive points to close Cleveland's lead to 83-79 with 1:19 remaining. Clemons then sewed up the game on a turn-around jumper with a minute left.

"A lot of teams are taking us lightly because we are a young team," Clemons said. "I'm convinced in a couple of years we will be in the same stage as far as ability and experience that Chicago is in now."

Five Cavaliers hit in double figures, paced by Jim Chones' 16 points and Dick Snyder's 15. Meanwhile, Jim Brewer held high-scoring Bob Love to 16 points while Snyder held Norm Van Lier to 11.

Warriors 111, Kings 103

Golden State's triumph, paced by Rick Barry's 34 points and Derek Dickey's 23 rebounds, gave the Warriors the best record in the Western Conference by one game over Chicago.

Pistons 91, Suns 79

Bob Lanier scored 26 points and played a big role in holding Phoenix to an all-time low of 10 in the third period. During the third quarter Phoenix converted only five of 19 shots while Lanier went on a 12-point binge to break the game open.

NCAA Finals Near

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Adolph Rupp, the man who made University of Kentucky basketball famous, arrived with the club for the National Collegiate Athletic Association finals in San Diego.

But this was a team that someone else built.

Rupp, now 73, was forced into retirement three years ago when he didn't want to quit. Joe B. Hall, one of his former players, assumed the reins the school took from the Baron when he reached 70.

The current team, with its 25-4 record, came via recruiting by Hall. This is his team, without the influence of Rupp, whose clubs in the past won four NCAA titles, 27 Southeast Conference crowns and two score All-Americans.

"I'm very, very proud of Coach Hall," now says Rupp, who wasn't happy to greet any successor. "He's done a great job. I think this is the strongest Kentucky team since 1948-49 and I'd be disappointed if they don't win it all."

Kentucky ranks as the No. 2 choice behind UCLA, which seeks its 10th

NCAA title under Coach John Wooden since 1964. In that long span, the Bruins have only lost twice—the latest to last year's eventual champion, North Carolina State, which didn't qualify for this tournament.

The physically powerful Wildcats of Kentucky open Saturday against surprising Syracuse at 12:10 p.m. PDT, followed by the UCLA-Louisville battle at 2:10. The winners tangle for the national title on Monday with all games at the already sold-out San Diego Sports Arena.

Hall's Kentucky team won No. 2 rating in The Associated Press poll behind UCLA after the regional tournaments. The Wildcats handed the previous No. 1, Indiana, its only loss of the season, 92-90.

"Needless to say," commented Hall, "we're mighty glad to be here."

Victory over Indiana marked the high point for Hall and Kentucky hasn't won the NCAA tournament since 1958, well before the advent of the Wooden championship era at UCLA.

Although the Wildcats are favored over Syracuse, at least one member of the coaching staff publicly worries.

"We're not bouncing back," said assistant coach Dick Parsons. "That Indiana game must have drained the players. We haven't got anything done all week. We've got work to do to catch up."

Half Of Ohio All-Star Team Named

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Phil Hubbard of Canton McKinley and Frankie Sanders of Dayton Stivers, two of The Associated Press state Players of the Year, were selected today to play for the Ohio All-Stars in the first Coliseum Classic Friday, April 11.

Five of the 10-man Ohio squad were announced by the sponsoring Knights of Columbus. The Ohioans will face the United States All-Stars in the game matching outstanding high school basketball seniors in the spacious Coliseum near Cleveland.

The 6-foot-7 Hubbard averaged more than 26 points per game and was acclaimed The AP Class AAA Player of the Year.

Sanders, who led Stivers to a runner-up finish in the state tournament, won similar honors in Class AA after hitting points at a better than 31 clip a contest. Sanders, 6-foot-5, is the greatest scorer ever in Dayton scholastic history.

Japan Imports Sea Delicacy

SAUSALITO, Calif. (AP) — Tokihide Ichinose of San Francisco has an unusual business. He hires divers, Caucasians, because they can stand the cold bay water, once a year (usually in January) to collect herring eggs and seaweed, from the rocks near here.

The eggs and seaweed are placed in large barrels and salted down, then shipped to Japan where they are considered a delicacy. Ichinose has the only commercial license for taking unlimited quantities of eggs from the bay. However, other divers can hunt for 25 pounds a day on sport fishing licenses. When received in Japan the product is called komochi konbu and is a favorite snack. "It isn't bad, if you put enough soy sauce on it," a fish and game official said.

Japan Imports Sea Delicacy

SAUSALITO, Calif. (AP) — Tokihide Ichinose of San Francisco has an unusual business. He hires divers, Caucasians, because they can stand the cold bay water, once a year (usually in January) to collect herring eggs and seaweed, from the rocks near here.

The eggs and seaweed are placed in large barrels and salted down, then shipped to Japan where they are considered a delicacy. Ichinose has the only commercial license for taking unlimited quantities of eggs from the bay. However, other divers can hunt for 25 pounds a day on sport fishing licenses. When received in Japan the product is called komochi konbu and is a favorite snack. "It isn't bad, if you put enough soy sauce on it," a fish and game official said.

Featured entertainment at both grad nites will be "Styx", the popular rock group from Chicago, whose hit recording of "Lady" is now one of the top ten records in the United States.

Appearing with "Styx" on May 16 is "Pure Prairie League". Their current hit record "Amie" reflects the group's popular country-rock sound.

"Sugarloaf" will be on stage with "Styx" May 23. "Sugarloaf" has been a major factor in the popular music field earning gold records for such songs as "Green Eyed Lady" and "Don't Call Us, We'll Call You".

Answers For Veterans

EDITOR'S NOTE: Each week the Circleville Herald will publish a series of Questions and Answers of interest to veterans. These questions and answers are some of the many presented to James P. Shea, Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer. Any veteran desiring further information concerning his Veterans Administration benefits should contact the Veterans Service Officer in the basement of the Pickaway County Court House.

(Q.) I'm drawing monthly educational assistance checks from the Veterans Administration, and would like to have them continued when I go to summer school. How can I accomplish this?

(A.) After you enroll for the summer session, notify the school of your continued eligibility for VA education benefits. The school will certify your re-enrollment to VA, and you will receive your payments effective the date of re-enrollment.

(Q.) I draw a VA pension for a total and permanent non-service connected disability and have been rated as in need of aid and attendance. Am I also eligible for outpatient medical treatment for any condition?

(A.) Yes, you are eligible for any medical treatment required, except for dental conditions.

(Q.) I am an honorably discharged World War II veteran. As I am now 66 years old, am I eligible for a VA pension?

(A.) You may be eligible, depending upon your annual income and net worth. If you're single and your income does not exceed $2600 a year, or $3800 if you have dependents, you could qualify. Check with your local VA office or the service officer of any recognized veterans' organization.

(Q.) Twenty years ago I bought a house with a maximum loan guaranty of $7,500 from the VA. Since the current loan guaranty maximum is $12,500, do I have more entitlement coming?

(A.) Yes. You still have entitlement equal to the difference between $12,500 and $7,500, or $5,000 in loan guaranty.

(Q.) As an honorable discharged veteran, I know that I am eligible for a GI Bill home loan guaranty. In applying for such a loan, will I have to make a down payment?

(A.) The VA doesn't require a down payment, but the lender may.
